is the heart of a bill to amend the B.C. Municipal Act introduced in the legislature

Municipal Affairs Minister Jim Lorimer brought in the sizeable list of amendments headed by elimination of corporate and absentee voters from municipal voting lists.

act now provides that each land-owner is entitled to corporation designated one of directors to vote on behalf of the corporation, and that director was also voting on behalf of some other landidual could end up with mul-

Lorimer told reporters after the legislation was introduced Monday evening the ultimate objective, which he hopes can be accomplished within two years, is to have an identical and municipal provincial voters list.

In the meantime, however, the new eligibility require-ment will be in effect for all municipal elections in 1974. It will be required that any municipality holding an election in 1974 must first conduct an enumeration of its residents so as to establish its voters

-Percentage vote required for passage of a money bylaw in a municipality drops to a majority from the former 60

Procedures through which adjoining areas can be amalgamated are clarified, with government retaining power to introduce special amalgamation bills concerning specific areas.

--Municipalities permitted to invest sinking funds in credit unions.

Lorimer said the money bylaw percentage vote re-quirement was lowered because of the government's belief a simple majority of residents of an area should be able to determine for themselves what measures they want to pay for.

Under existing legislation, amalgamation of areas was possible through a variety of methods. Under the new bill, the minister of municipal affairs may order an amal-gamation on the basis of a simple majority vote of the over-all area affected by the

For example, in the case of Greater Victoria, if View Royal, Langford and Colwood were proposed for amalgama-tion with the other four core municipalities, all that would be required would be a majority vote of the residents of Greater Victoria, including ople living in View Royal, Colwood and Langford.

The effect of this is that the largely-negative reaction of in outlying areas being faced with increased munici pal taxes as a result of amalgamation will not be as evident since it will be only part of a much larger expression

The legislation specifies the minister has power to deter-mine voting boundaries.

NOBODY WANTS COX'S JOB

WASHINGTON (WP) — Acting U.S. Attorney-General bert Bork continued his efforts Monday to find a new special Watergate prosecutor but without success.

Bork would not say how many rejections he has received, but he did not deny that some candidates have said no.

He has called some 20 persons, including prospective nominees, about the job, several sources said. Bork said that he was calling "friends and attorneys" and as a result, taking some names off his list of possible appointees and adding others to it. He said some people he has called suggested reasons why certain nominees should not be considered and then recommended another candidate or two.

'So my lists grows by the day," he said. (See also Page

QUEBEC (CP) — There is legend in Quebec politics that the late Maurice Duplessis told his political cronies the powerful party he founded in 1935 would die with him. Although the story has been e le ction since Duplessis' death in 1959, few people put much credence in the legend until they boked at the results of Meday's election.

The mon Nationale, of the proposition in the last method assembly, failed to win a seat. Gabriel Loubier, the party's leader, was one of its 110 candidates to be defeated.

Loubier said in a post-elec-tion statement he plans a few days holidays and then will meet the party's executive to discuss its future. To many it was almost unbelievable that the party Duplessis built out of a collection of Conservatives and dissident Liberals had been shattered, perhaps beyond repair, in Premier Robert Bourassa's overwhelming sweep.

The Union Nationale ended 40-year Liberal reign in 1936 and itself appeared headed for a lengthy term in office under Duplessis' authoritarian

But the Second World War came in 1939 and Duplessis decided to fight an election on a platform of non-participa tion. The federal Liberals took up the challenge and came Quebec with the party coffers and its most powerful speakers to help lead the pro-vincial Liberals to victory.

Duplessis' stay in opposition lasted until 1944 when he again ousted the Liberals with a battle cry that was to keep him in office through other

Hospital employees are un-able to post a 72-hour strike notice however until after a negotiating meeting, scheduled for Thursday in Vancouver, a spokesman said

Issues at stake are discrimination against women employees, seniority, institution of an apprenticeship program and the right to opt for bind-

"The union and its membership is not willing to enter into any agreement that does established at Royal Jubilee, Victoria General and a number of other hospitals," union assistant business manager Jack Gerow said.

"The standards have result-ed in the elimination of discrimination at these hospitals," he added.

Special arbitration hearings Special arbitration hearings for selected groups of practical nurses earlier this year gave monthly wage increases of $144, putting the women on equal footing with orderlies with a $707 monthly wage.

A master agreement to end all discrimination in hospitals by 1976 between the province and the union followed. Gerow said those bargain-

Wholesale # Prices Drop

OTTAWA — Wholesale prices of food and industrial goods posted the biggest drop in more than three years in September, Statistics Canada reported Monday. However the prices remained 27.4% above September last year.

A companion report also showed some food products manufacturers selling manuacturers selling at lower prices last month, par-ticularly for meat, flour and vegetable oils.

Herb Gray, minister of consumer and corporate affairs, told the Commons the government is watching to see whether wholesale food price declines are being passed along to consumers. However, the drop of seven tenths of one per cent in the government's General Wholesale Index last month offset only a fraction of the previous month's 7.5 per cent increase, steepest for a single month in more than 34 years.

The food manufacturers price reductions in September were also smaller than their previous month's increases.

Over-all wholesale prices in September were 27.4 per cent over a year earlier, with animal products 63 per cent higher and vegetable products 30.8 per cent more costly.

Some of the wholesale food

price drop in September appeared to have been reflected in the more moderate rise in September living costs reported earlier by Statistics sumer Price Index was sixtenths of one per cent, less than half August's 22-yearhigh increase of 1.3 per cent.

VANCOUVER - B.C. Federation of Labor president. George Johnston announced Monday that officers will recommend that Len Guy, second vice-president of the federation and president of the International Typographi-cal Union, Local 226, will take over the remaining one year of Ray Haynes' twoyear term.
The recommendation goes off Campbell River.

Haynes, 45, held the secretary-treasurer's post for eight years. He said the decision to had found the $18,500 job with the federation increasingly

He said he felt the job was taking as much out of him in one year as any other job had

Haynes, on the verge of breaking down and crying at the end of his speech, said he felt sure he was leaving the federation in good hands.

He said the federation would have to tackle even tougher problems in the future regarding picketing, break-away unions and the need for Canadian autonomy for members of the interna tional unions.

He has been in the labor movement for 25 years, start-ing with the International Woodworkers of America and then going to the International Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union.

Last February, Haynes was appointed to the judicial council of the provincial court and the appointment was de-scribed by former labor minister James Chabot as a political payoff.

Chabot called the labor leader the "chief bagman" of the NDP.

In September Haynes resigned from the judicial council post following discussions with Attorney-General Alex Macdonald.

Quebec Makes It Clear

The Quebec general election was fought in two perspectives. In the foreground was the record of the Liberal government under Premier Bourassa - its efforts to encourage large industry, provide jobs and improve the welfare programs. But in the background, as a result of the determined campaign of the Parti Quebecois, was the much larger issue of separatism the vital question of whether Quebec would eventually try to get out of Confederation.

On the basis of Monday's voting results the government's program was adjudged acceptable -and separatism received a resounding "no." The Parti Quebecois attained its objective - to become the official opposition by winning second place. But it achieved number two position, not so much by gaining more support as through the virtual disappearance of the other two parties in the contest - the Union Nationale and the Creditistes. Indeed, while Mr. Bourassa was returned personally after an anxious fight in his own constituency, all the other leaders, including the PQ's Mr. Levesque, were defeated.

To be second with eight seats, when the government has been returned with a gain of nearly 30 for a total of 100 seats, is hardly a success, even though the Parti Quebecois amassed about 30 per cent of the vote, up from 23 per cent in 1970. The small gain of the separatists was lost in the massive determination of the rest of the province to ensure a PQ defeat by uniting behind one party - the only one in the campaign, as Mr. Trudeau observed, that came out flatly for the federal connection.

The government's landslide is one to be welcomed across Canada,... regardless of party, for it appears to silence the bogey of separatism for the foreseeable future. It is gratifying to find that when the issue is put clearly before them, the people of Quebec will turn out in record numbers to vote Canadi-

It is, at the same time, essential that the rest of Canada should not now lean back with a sigh and forget Quebec. The obligation remains to see that the Ancient Province gets its fair share of national advantages without feeling that it has to threaten dismemberment of Confederation to enjoy

Where the Energy Crisis Is Tangible

In Canada the energy crisis has been more threatened than real to date. Maritimers face a possible winter gasoline and heating fuel shortage because of an uncertain international climate. Here at home a predicted 10 per cent winter natural gas shortage was offset by juggling allocations of the scarce fuel to ensure adequate supplies for B.C. industry.

But in the U.S. Pacific Northwest the crisis is more tangible. Nobody is without energy although many areas are feeling the pinch. As one example, state signs along U.S. 395 near Spokane, Washington, inform drivers that highway lighting has been minimized to conserve electricity. Television advertisements attempt to persuade people to cut back household lighting and use electric washers and dryers only when fully loaded. Seattle store windows are darkened at closing time.

The ads are quick to point out that none of this is alarming. A combination of circumstances - a dry year which has kept hydro dams at low levels, coupled with a burgeoning energy-hungry population - has resulted in temporary shortages. But Spokane's Expo 74 officials admit that a severe gasoline shortage next summer could be a disaster for the exhibition.

Perhaps such a combination of circumstances won't occur again.

Nuclear energy and new petroleum finds may provide respite. Yet already it appears likely that electric toothbrushes and eightcylinder internal combustion engines will be strange curiosities to future generations who have learned to live within their means.

A Liberal-Conservative Battleground

With the resignation of Liberal MLA David Brousson the province faces another byelection. And while the relatively safe Liberal seat of North Vancouver-Capilano won't offer the political implications that were found in the recent South Okanagan byelection, it should be a hard-fought contest between Liberals and Conservatives.

Provincial Conservative President Peter Hyndman, narrowly defeated in West Vancouver at the last provincial election by Liberal Allan Williams, has expressed a strong desire to contest the seat. Since 1968 Mr. Brousson has walked away with the riding, showing a popular vote margin of almost 20 per cent over his two opponents. Whether a carpetbagging Tory can take a staunch liberal seat won't be known until the byelection is held — sometime before the spring session according to Premier Barrett.

But the Conservatives might have the razor's edge. In the last election they rose from negligible popular vote representation to 13 per cent of the total. The Liberals fell three per cent. It is also true that any party with only five sitting members will keenly feel the loss of any one MLA, particularly the honest, aggressive Mr. Brousson. That is not to say the Liberals are waning as the Conservatives are waxing. But the Capilano byelection will undoubtedly be an interesting Conservative-Liberal battleground with psychological implications for both parties above and beyond winning

JAMES RESTON

From One Mess to Another

The one thing you have to say for Richard Nixon is that he knows when he is licked. Almost everything he always said he would never do - compromise with Moscow, recognize Peking, accept deficit financing, or be unfaithful to his promises - he has done. And he has done it again by releasing the Watergate tapes, which he said he would never

It was a clever move. He has retreated from one mess to another, but he has gained time. It will take weeks to get the tapes down on paper and to get a new team to take over the prosecution at the Justice Department, but meanwhile, he has got rid of Archibald Cox, the "independent" prosecutor, which was probably his objective, and he has postponed - though he has not avoided - a critical battle with both the courts and the Congress.

The President, was in terrible trouble before he switched and agreed to let the tapes go to the courts. He judged Archibaid Cox well enough. He gave Cox a dishonorable order he knew Cox wouldn't accept, and he was right. So Cox, for the moment, is going home.

Foreign Crisis

But the President misjudged Attorney General Richardson, and Deputy Attorney General Ruckelshaus. He appealed to Richardson to concentrate on the Middle East crisis, and stay on even if Cox disappeared. He even had Richardson's old friend Henry Kissinger appeal to Richardson to stress the foreign crisis and avoid a resignation, but Richardson didn't agree.

The White House didn't even give Richardson time to respond to the President's order to fire special prosecutor Cox. Gen. Alexander Haig called Richardson at seven o'clock on the Saturday night and told him the President was sending him a message, which seemed to call for an answer from Richardson, but while the Attorney General was trying to draft a reply, the White House put out its announcement that Cox was fired.

Then the White House turned to Ruckelshaus to fire Cox, and Haig not only told him this was an order from "the commander-in-chief" but appealed to him on patriotic grounds to carry out the order. Ruckelshaus, according to his associates, replied that natriotism was not the same as obedience, that in his mind it was sometimes the opposite, and that he would not comply. So he was fired.

Meanwhile, Richardson appealed to the President's aides and lawyers to consider what the reaction would be in Congress and in the country if they fired Cox for carrying out the independent prosecution he was promised by the

ELLIOT RICHARDSON . . . didn't agree

President and the Attorney General, but his appeals were rejected, even after he implied that he would have to resign if they insisted.

It is interesting and significant that during those critical five days when Richardson was negotiating with the White House staff, and warning them not to fire Cox or force his own resignation, the President never discussed the problem personally with his own Attorney General, until the very end when it was clear that the President was determined to get rid of Cox. Only then, when Richardson said he would resign if Cox was fired, did the President agree to see him, and even then, he let him go and later ordered him to dismiss Cox. It was a typical, bold, and desperate

Nixon play, but this time it didn't work. Public reaction went against the President. Cox, Richardson and Ruckelshaus went on television and stated their arguments, all of them, and particularly Richardson, with devastating effect.

Accordingly, the President was confronted with precisely the power struggle he had sought to avoid. The Congress was proceeding toward impeachment proceedings in the House. The unions were demanding his dismissal from the presidency. More important, the old Republican establishment, led by the leaders of the bar, were denouncing the dismissal of Cox and the resignation of Richardson, and the indications were that Judge Sirica was going to hold the President in contempt of court.

Into the Streets

Facing all this, and the prospect that the controversy would go back into the streets if he defied the courts and the Congress, the President agreed to hand over the tapes. This will avoid the clash for a time but not for long.

For once he has admitted the tapes to evidence in the courts, it will be hard for him to exclude other relevant documents, or to argue against another special prosecutor. He has got rid of Cox for the moment, but not of prosecution. He has saved his skin, but not his honor.

Ironically, he chose to challenge in this latest of his political crises three % men - Cox, Richardson and Ruckelshaus - who had become the most attractive and articulate symbols of objectivity and probity in his administration. And in the process, he lost all three.

This has shocked Washington more than anything since the Watergate burglary, and while he now has time to try to sort things out, he has affronted his own most loyal supporters and even his own cabinet, and raised the most serious questions about his moral authority to govern over the next three years.

A Policy Corner in Sight?

OTTAWA - John Turner's mid-week speech at London was almost bound, in present political circumstances, to start a wave of speculation about the future

MAURICE WESTERN

A minister of finance must be particularly guarded in his public pronouncements since his comments are likely to be subjected to most searching examination by all sorts of interests whose decisions would be affected by changes or even minor modifications of fiscal and monetary policy.

Few ministers of finance have shown more constant awareness of this than John Turner. His caution and self-restraint are the more impressive because, nature a candid and straightforward

The puzzling question arises not from the general tone of the London speech but from a single paragraph which the minister might very easily have omitted without damage to the unity of the text.

The paragraph reads: "The inflationary problem with which we have to deal has been worldwide in origin and the result of a unique combination of international circumstances. I want to make it perfectly clear, however, that if it became evident that the fundamental nature of the problem had changed, with the main source of inflationary pressures coming, not from world commodity shortages but from a domestic spiral of costs and prices, the policy response of the government might well have to be

Change of Judgment

Mr. Turner must be speaking of a change of judgment on the part of his ranking advisers for what is "evident" to one economist is commonly obscure to many others. Thus, at the moment, the relative weights of the international and Canadian components of inflation are very much matters of dispute, as anyone must conclude from a comparison of the minister's speech in London and the speech of his leading Conservative critic. James Gillies, in Toronto on the follow-

If the Government, either as a result of political pressures, which are obviously mounting, or in consequence of disquieting readings of the thermometers of inflation, was actually in process of reconsidering its current fiscal and mone tary policies or felt uncertain of its ability to maintain those policies, it is altogether likely that the minister of finance would seek to insure himself through precisely such hints. For ministers do not willingly turn sharp corners - the shock to the government and sometimes to public confidence may be too dangerous. Perhaps the experience of the Diefenbaker administration with devaluation is instructive on this

The matter may be put in a slightly different way. If change becomes necessary, a government is in a stronger position if it can show by suitable references that change was anticipated; that the managers of our economy had some pre-

But while such hints might be expected in such circumstances, it is far from certain that Mr. Turner's cautionary paragraph had any such purpose. It is, of course, common knowledge that the government has had contingency plans for a long time.

The fact that the passage occurs in the context of a long and now familiar defence of existing policy may not be too significant for difficult corners (if any are in sight) would be skilfully negotiat-What may be of more importance is the fact that Mr. Turner risked a predic tion in the London speech which would certainly be more embarrassing than helpful if change became imperative.

Speaking of the general, and not solely of the Canadian price surge, Mr. Turner said: "There is reason to hope that these inflationary pressures will begin to subside - in fact may have already begun to subside - as the economies of the industrial nations are geared back to a more sustainable pace and the supply shortages of agricultural and industrial commodities are gradually over-

The risk is the more considerable because Mr. Turner's reassuring view seems distinctly at variance with the disturbing observations on the previous day of Emile van Lennep, secretary-genertal of the OECD. He spoke ominously of "a point of no return" for the inflation-ridden free market countries.

"The signs are becoming increasingly clear," he said, "that we have moved into a world in which the inflation cycle consists no longer of symmetrical ups and downs, but more of an upward ratchet mechanism, with the rate of inflation moving from peak to new peaks.

To the extent that inflation is general, the cure doubtless depends on international action. On this point Mr. Gillies observed at Toronto: "Unfortunately, wide problem, there is an implication that some sort of vague international agency is looking at this problem and eventually will bring it under control. Nothing could be further from the

Mr. Gillies noted that both OECD and the International Monetary Fund have stressed the responsibilities of member countries in this connection, with the IMF going so far as to urge the various nations to adopt income policies. Evidently the Conservatives are in process of broadening their attack, arguing that Canada is doing much less than she is capable of doing, and should do, to help mount and sustain an international effort.

Apart from the paragraph about hypothetical changes Mr. Turner's London speech included other passages inviting comment. In opposing controls the government insists on the superiority of supply and improved labor market policies. These are admirable in principle. But how much promise of improvement do they hold if it is true, as the minister contends, that the Canadian economy "is now operating at or very close to the limits of capacity?"

Jobless Upsurge

The Conservatives already have seized on Mr. Turner's response to the latest upsurge in jobless figures. His argument in essence is that "the problem of unemployment today does not grow out of weakness of the economy but - in large measure— out of its very strength."

This contention may be correct if the categories of the "employed" and the "unemployed" have lost part of their old meaning. There may well be substantial numbers for whom work is more or less optional. Although normally outside the labor force, they may be drawn into it by new opportunities, as Mr. Turner suggested, or driven into it by pressure of rising prices on fixed and increasingly less tolerable incomes.

But again a question arises. If the strong and inflated economy produces unemployment - hitherto a social evil associated with economic weakness how can the government maintain its present postures? Until now it has been all very well to assert stoutly that ministers will never be satisfied until all Canadians, ready and willing to work, have found jobs. It becomes rather meaningless, however, if experience is now demonstrating that such fine ministerial aspirations are simply not relevant to the realities of this strange new economic world.

60 YEARS AGO

The lot of the domestic servant was brought to the attention of the Labor Commission by inspector of customs Marchant at the session this morning at the parliament buildings. He suggested that the women in service should have a limit of a maximum number of hours, and be paid extra for overtime. Mr Marchant pointed to the difference between the treatment accorded to an Oriental and white helper. The hours of service were well defined for the Oriental domestic, he declared, but not for the white girl, and in view of the fact that this class of labor was the most defenceless in the province, the commission should recommend legislation limiting the maximum number of hours and fixing the principal of paying extra for overtime. Domestic servants now receive between $20 and $30 per month.

'The White House was once and will be again - a great place for a young man to work. I did it myself and have never been sorry. Fate was kind and my age was right: It was Harry Truman's White House, and I worked for Charlie Murphy - Charles S. Murphy, to give him his due. He was the President's Special Counsel, successor to Clark Clifford in that post and one of Truman's senior aides. Working for Murphy and with him for the President was a fine experience, as unlike Egil Krogh's or Gordon Strachan's as day from night. A story illustrates what made it so, and the story is a starting point for looking at the Presidency now, by light of Watergate.

In December, 1950, at the wrenching turn of the Korean war, amidst Chinese attack, American retreat, renewed in flation, fears of a Third War. Truman met at the White House with the Congressional leaders of both parties. Their meeting in the Cabinet Room was largely symbolic, un-derlining events; it was an occasion for briefings, not ac-

Soon after it broke up, a White House usher came to Murphy's office with a memorandum found under the cabinet table. This was a document of several pages addressed by the staff of the Senate Minority Policy Committee to Senators Robert A. Taft and Kenneth S. Wherry, the Republican leaders.

Some of his assistants were with Murphy at the time, and we fell upon it with whoops of

TRUMAN

As I recall, one of us read it aloud. It dealt with the contingency (which had not that the President use that meeting to seek pledges of bipartisan support for the Administration's future conduct of the war. This, the memorandum at all costs. By Easter recess the war could have taken such a turn that Republicans might wish to accuse Truman of treason, and they should be free to do so.

The term "treason" fired in me and my associates an outrage we wanted the world to share. With the loyalty of subalterns, more royalist than copied ... show it to the the king, we cried, "Get it . leak it to the press!" Murphy smiled at us, took the memorandum from us, sealed it in an envelope, summoned a messenger and sent it by hand to Senator. Taft. End of story.

Pablo Casals . . . roots in romantic tradition

There's More to Music Than the Printed Notes

By HAROLD C. SCHONBERG New York Times

Pablo Casals represented a type of musicianship that is virtually extinct today-a musicianship that had its roots in the romantic traditions of the 19th century. As such he was a romantic himself, and young musicians today tended to look fondly upon him as a living anachronism. All, especially string players, had nothing but respect for Casals's powers as an instrumentalist.

But as an interpreter his ideas ran counter to many of today's cherished notions. Today's musicians tend to be literalists. The printed note is the ultimate guide. Casals, however, along with other great musicians of his generation, tried to look beyond the print-

The important thing in music, he kept telling his pupils, is what is not in the notes. The important thing is the re-creation of an emotion, a mood, an experi-

Thus when Casals played or conducted Bach, he was not afraid to indulge in certain expressive devices that a stricter age regards as anathema. This did not disturb Casals, who considered Bach a romantic anyway. He would use an intensified scale of dynamics. avoid strict metrics (even to the point of the tempo rubato), phrase with a grand sweep and emphaize the melodic elements. His basic approach to Bach and the other early composers was substantially no different than it was to Brahms and Schumann.

And who is to say that Casals, with his concentra tion on the expressive elements of music, had the wrong approach? He was no musicologist, but he was able to do what very few musicians can do-play with complete mastery, in a manner that always impressed and moved with its sheer conviction. His approach was so big that it simply negated criticism.

As a conductor he brought the same kind of approach exemplified by his cello playing. At rehearsals he was constantly exhorting his players to sing out, to phrase with beauty, to use a full bow, to avoid dryness. He had the orchestra constantly thinking about dynamics.

Even toward the end, his enthusiasm was as great as ever, his ear seemingly intallible. After a lifetime of living in an area of music that extended, approximately, from Bach through Brahms (he was a vative, and contemporary music did not interest him) there were few things he did not know about his chosen literature. In addition he had total recall. He had met everybody and heard everybody, and he was a living encyclopedia on performance practice of the

But Casals was not a blind idolator of the past. He was the first to admit that the new school was technically superior to the old, even if he had many reservations about the drier emotional approach of the new school. It was his ambition to take the brilliantly gifted young cellists of today and try to instill into them something of the tradition and the ideals that motivated

He did not expect imitation from his pupils (in any case, nobody could imitate Casals), but he could help them with technical problems, and he could stimulate them to look upon music in an intensified manner. He could, and he did. To all musicians, even the most cynical, he was an inspiration. For he had devoted his long life to music without expectating any rewards aside from the joy of exploring a piece of music and constantly renewing himself in it.

You Can Blame It All on an Unhappy Childhood

The first night back on the iron bedstead was, of course, always the worst one. Slipping in between the cold sheets, my case knowing and dread-ing the fact that they'd inevi-tably be wet in the morning, n a dormitory full of chattering boys incredibly pleased to be back at the start of a new term was an occasion that still gives me the horrors to Even now, after 25 years, the smell of leather and pipe smoke reminds me of all those headmasters' studies that I was summoned to. At my last prep school the head-master, who had the magnificent name of Walpole E. ley, cleared the room of all the furniture before dishing out a caning. He said it gave and see just the one chair in the middle of the room that I knew I was going to have to bend over and then I'd reluctantly look at the rack of canes on the wall and pray that he'd piok the thickest one and not one of those wispy stingers. I'd then pray that the Germans might score a direct hit on the establishment. They never did.

I used to walk into his study

I'm pleased to say, though, myself came very close to destroying the school in the eyes of the headmaster and the rest of the staff. At the beginning of my last term Watson approached me as I was unpacking my Biggles books and hiding my Park Drive cigarettes under the mattress and told me of the remarkable discovery he'd made during the holidays.

It was called masturbation, he said, and it really was "rather extraordinary." The following morning I had to agree with him that he was dead right.

We were so naive and innocent then that we didn't know what we were doing. The least we could do, we thought, was to tell the rest of the school about Watson's remarkable find. Of course in no time at all every one of the hundred or so inmates of the place was at it and it was bad luck that it should have been Watson, my best friend and closest associate, who was the first one to be caught red handed

A sort of inquisition followed. Every boy in the school was grilled, Watson and I were exposed as being innovators of the whole disgusting business and letwere sent to our parents. While he was at it, the headmaster also wrote me a reference to take to my next chool, the Nautical College,

"While I regard Bernard as being a bad influence," he wrote, "he has excellent prospects of making a fine seam

Anyway, as soon as I got home, smothered in blushes and twisted with guilt, my mother sent me off to a joketype Austrian psychiatrist in Wimpole Street, I sat down in his consulting room feeling terribly grown up in my first said: "Tell me, do you ever play wizz your leetle man?" I was deeply shocked by his baby talk and pompously replied, "Do you mean mastur-bate?" He roared with laugh-ter, and then quite angrily I said: "What's so funny?"

"Nuzzing, nuzzing at all. I'm simply amused by your insistence of using its legal term." After that I got on outle with him and I quite well with him and think he was particularly grateful to me for my warning him that my mother would probably knock him for Within six or so weeks I'd almost stopped wetting my bed and then the great day came when I put on my midshipman's uniform and went off to Pangbourne to have Scholastically, I stank. It's still a complete mystery to me how I came to win a history prize at the end of my first term. But I did and they asked me what book I'd like to have as this prize. Sons and Lovers, I told them, having been told by another boy that it was a dirty book. They looked shocked and went away. Then a man who was called the Director of Studies sent for me, told me I couldn't have it, and asked what book I'd like as an alternative. Ulysses I told him, having heard that it was even

At the same time the photograph of Ava Gardner I had pinned under my desk lid was brought to light and that earned me three "cuts" an extremely powerful Master of Arms.

> I managed to hang on at, Pangbourne for two years in all, but they knew from that moment that I'd never get to dock the Queen Elizabeth into New York. At the end of term, they gave me my prize, a nicely bound copy of Conrad's Nigger of the Nar-cissus. They thought it was good, clean, salty stuff for a 16-year-old.

Gradually I became appalled at the idea of being an officer in the merchant navy. I started to hate Pangbourne and had less and less to do with anyone.

The boy I spent most of my time with was called Grove. We had a hut in the woods, something like an Anderson shelter and we spent the weekends in it sitting in front of the log fire, making toast and smoking endless cigar-

Sometimes we'd be joined by Mr. Dixon the maths master. He was mad. A paranoiac. He'd lived for a long time in Egypt and told us that he'd deserted his wife in Thebes. Apparently she was hunting him down and getting closer every day.

old man began to look for her under our desks. One day in the middle of an equation, he said that she was very warm and he jumped out of the classroom window and ran away for the rest of the

I didn't see him until the following Saturday when he came into my hut with two ounces of tobacco and spent the afternoon teaching me how to roll cigarettes. On Sundays he'd take Grove and myself to a tea shop in Goring and allow us to smoke That was his undoing and he got the sack.

The Chief Cadet Captain promptly told everyone I'd taken it very well and for the rest of the week I was moderately popular.

I'd say one thing for Pangbourne, though. It has made me gratuitously rude and aggressive towards authority and I'd like to take the opportunity now of apologizing to any editor, uniformed commissionaire, bus conductor, psychiatrist, policeman, wife, steward of the Jockey Club, publican, gamekeeper or Social Security officer for my bad behaviour since 1948.

a political and moral nightmare. Ever since the inauguration of Richard Nixon and Spiro Agnew in January of this year, the world has been subjected to shock after shock as the unbelievable followed the incredible. There seems to be no end.

Now, after ten months, nothing seems real. The Archibald Cox and Elliott Richardson firing was greeted with glazed eyes. After all, only ten days had gone by since the then vice-president had pled guilty to charges of income tax evasion. The mind is clogged with news of corruption, dishonesty and the relaxed misuse of power.

And the image of Richard Nixon has shrunk with each new tragic disclosure. Where is the man who went to Moscow? Where is the man who walked on the Great Wall of China? What good now are the houses at Washington, San Clemente, Key Biscayne and Camp David? Or the fleets of jets, helicopters and yachts? Where is the king whose golden haired princess was married in the Rose Garden such a few short months ago? Where have all the flowers gone?

Perhaps the collapse of Richard Nixon may turn out to be a major milestone in American history.

In Nixon's view American wealth and power were built on a few simplistic beliefs. Economic growth is always good! America deserves to be first in everything! My country right or wrong What's good for General Motors is good for the country! The Stars and Stripes

Richard Nixon, his staff, and his followers believe that these hackneyed phrases were God's truth. They believed that they knew what was right for America, and that the heretics must be

They came to power at the end of a decade of intellectual turmoil. The concept of constant growth was being seriously questioned. The conservationists were blocking development of oil fields, pipe lines, freeways, sub-divisions and skyscrapers. The youth of America balked on Vietnam. They thought the country was wrong so they turned against the country. The drug culture appeared, so did women's liberation and the so called new morality.

The Nixon men saw these trends as dangerous to America. So Mr. Nixon together with Messrs. Agnew, Mitchell, Ehrlichman, Haldeman et al, set out to as its true basic spiritual home, and to them the end was so spiritually pure that any means were justified to attain

Thus the stage was set for confronta-tion. On the one hand an administration of cynical users of a system which they thought they understood was trying to protect a world which no longer existed.

And on the other hand there were in creasingly large numbers of Americans who were thinking the unthinkable who were questioning the old axioms about power, money, war, growth and American invincibility.

So the maximum level of public cynicism about American gold happened to coincide with an administration highly cynical itself, but apparently unable to recognize the discontent which surrounded_it

And so we have seen waves of public indignation wash these men from office. And the men who have gone seem puzzled. Even now they don't seem to understand where they went wrong. They blame the Washington Post and the New York Times.

Probably Mr. Nixon will be washed away too. And when new leaders come to power they will have to play by new rules, which are really the old rules upon which the Republic was founded.

Good Crops Ease Threat Of Famine

WASHINGTON (AP) dramatically improved harvest in the Soviet Union indicates that the 1973 world wheat crop may be more than enough to meet international food needs through mid-1974, the United States agriculture department said Monday. The department's foreign agricultural service said the 1973 Soviet wheat crop, re-bounding sharply from last year's near disaster, is expected to be a record 100 mil-lion tons, up five million from indications two months ago.

That would put world wheat output in 1973-74 at a record 354.8 million tons about 5.6 million less than the anticipated demand by all countries.
But a spokesman said the department is in the process of revising further the Soviet wheat estimate, possibly to 110 million tons or more.

BUFFALO (AP) — Coach Hank Stram of Kansas City Chiefs said: "Incredible was the best way to describe it."
He was talking about O. J.

Simpson, All America Heis-man Trophy winner from Southern California, reeled off 157 yards rushing to increase his total to 1,025.

For O. J., the output was a seven-game NFL record—54 yards more than Jim Brown posted for Cleveland Browns in 1963; Simpson set another mark, carrying 39 times to better by one the number of carries by Harry Newman in 1934 and Jim Nance in 1966)

"I really don't think about records," Simpson said in the dressing room. "Instead, you've got to run and that's what I'm doing. You don't run for records. You just run and the records come."

But Simpson, pointing to

Football: Add Four More to Trophy List

The essence of defence in football is "get the quarter back" and four more good ones were listed as trophies after weekend action in the National Football League.

Hardest hit were the Pittsburgh Steelers, No. 1 in the Central Division of the American Conference. They lost their first-string quarterback Terry Bradshaw for sure, for at least six weeks with a broken collarbone. Their second string, Terry Hanratty, was also racked up, but managed to continue in the game despite cracked ribs.

The others, perhaps not as prominent, but equally as valuable to the success of their clubs, were Greg Landry of Detroit and Jim Del Gaizo of Green Bay. Both were side-lined. The full extent of their injuries is not yet announced, but it's still tough, hard-nosed football, that endless fight between offence and defence. The quarterbacks are the brave

There has often been talk of giving quarterbacks more protection, of having rules that might help to prevent some of these serious injuries, especially on those late hits. Those are the plays open to criminal charges. But just as often it is the quarterbacks who shy away from any change. They are proud of their trade, risky and dangerous as it may be.

Most notable case in point is Joe Namath, kingpin of the New York Jets and one of the most celebrated passers the game has known. In a recent magazine article, Namath sald in his opinion nothing should be done to detract from this phase of the game.

"If the defence wins they are entitled to their trophy," he said. What trophy? "Me."

The Biggest Prize of All

Namath is still out of action from a separated shoulder suffered in the Jets' 34-10 victory over Baltimore, and if he is generally considered No. 1 among NFL passers, the Jetshave won only one game since he became a victim. That typifies his value to the club.

If that wasn't bad enough, Namath's replacement, Al Woodall, was knocked out of action with a sprained knee; and since then the Jets have been going with a fellow who was a free agent and got his job only because coach Weeb Ewbank saw movies of him as a college quarterback, and liked what he saw. Bill Demory is the name, for the present just another guy, but learning fast. If he is no Namath, there aren't many who are either; and few men have taken such a battering.

Of course, if he couldn't throw he wouldn't be in the hospital that often. When he was first signed by the Jets as a $400,000 quarterback, when that was bigger money than it is now, he immediately became the most coveted prize of all blitzing linebackers and pass rushers.

"I was the trophy they wanted, and I knew it," said Namath. The kurt shoulder is just the latest in a long list. Namath, it will be recalled, had a knee operation before he reported to the Jets. He's had three more operations on his traces there there is the state of the same than the same than

He's also had a broken bone in his passing wrist, and once when he was hit by big Ben Davidson of the Oakland Raiders, by a taped right hand, he suffered a fractured cheekbone while his helmet spun crazily across the field. But it didn't upset his cool.

A Price for Greatness

They tell the story how Namath appeared in the lobby of the hotel that evening, face swollen, in a tux, and with a glass of scotch in one hand. He had difficulty speaking.

"Where are you going?" someone asked. "I'm off to Vegas," he said. The next Sunday, he was back in the lineup.

But will he retire? Not likely, not this time. After his latest separation he said: "Not me. I'm going to keep playing Maybe some quarterbacks can throw farther than Namath, but few are as accurate or as quick. That is his forte, plus his flair as the playboy type. He is the instant-hero individual, and gutsy, just like all quarterbacks.

And could it be that Sunday's injury to Bradshaw might spell doom for the Steelers, especially if Hanratty gets another shot to the rib cage like he received on Sunday?

Perhaps hut that's the price of greaters all winning.

Perhaps, but that's the price of greatness all winning teams must pay. Most quarterbacks, however, wouldn't have it any other way. It's their creed.

As Namath said: "If the defence wins, they're entitled

Danny Rogers Returns To Cougars Tonight

Victoria hockey fans will have to wait an extra three days to see defenceman Kim Clackson in a Flin Flon Bomber uniform, but they will see the return of goaltender Danny Rogers tonight.

Victoria Cougars take on New Westminster Bruins in a Western Canada Western Canada Junior League game at Memorial Arena tonight at 8 and Rogers, who shared netmindseason, is one of three Nanaimo Clippers who will join the team. The others are defenceman Gord Genereux and defenceman-forward Bruce Van Camp, all on a one-game

Coach Ollie Dorohoy indicated last night that Rogers, a 16-year-old Saanich minor hockey grad, who was sent to the Clippers for seasoning in the B.C. Junior League, will be his starter with Glen Anweiler as the backup. That means Glen Bueckert won't Clackson drew two games for leaving the bench and five more for the sticking in-cident. Baxter got five games. In addition to the suspensions, Clackson, Baxter and other players involved in a pair of brawls between Winnipeg and Flin Flon last week received fines totalling $175.

WCHL president Ed Cheynoweth of Saskatoon also announced that Bomber coach Pat Ginell has been fined $250 for failing to control his players while Winnipeg coach Gerry Brisson has been fined the same amount for pulling his team off the ice.

The Canadian Eurling Association is attempting to minimize the possibility of having bad ice. They realize the spectator appeal of the Brier play that is expected from the provincial champions.

Everything adds up to the rior ability.

One thing that louses up the ice is heat. The amount of heat generated by a full house of spectators is terrific and then we have the lights necessary for color television. Their tremendous heat melts the ice surface and even warms the rocks.

The people who are responsible for next year's Brier (London, Ont.) owe it to the spectators and the curlers to do everything possible to insure good ice conditions. Those who make the re-

* * It may be a long time before Earl Reynolds gets his putter back. The Cowichan golfer's temporary loan to his professional seems to be permanent, and might explain Bill Wakeham's success since the first week in September.

Returning from the CPGA tournament in Ontario, Wakeham was informed the would not be allowed to freight his clubs back to B.C. because priority, in the midst of a nationwide transportation strike, belonged elsewhere.

That meant the Chopper had to scramble for equipment if he hoped to play in the CFAX-Metro Toyota tournament at Cedar Hill. Ald. Ken Hill told council tenders will be called Nov. 1 and awarded by Nov. 29 for construction of the centre on a five-acre parcel of land at the corner of Fraser and Lyall by Bullen Park.

Council approved in princi-ple the bylaw allowing expro-priation of "certain lands" for recreational and community uses of the public.

expropriation bylaw, described in council as a safe-guard measure only, follows reported hold-ups in negotia-tions over the transfer to the municipality of the Scout Hall located in the midst of the proposed centre land.

ipal engineer Cliff said demolition of Municipal Jubilee Hall should be com-pleted by mid-November when work will start on tennis courts and a lacrosse box on the property.

The bylaw could allow expropriation of the Scout Hall property, so construction work on the site can begin by Dec. 1 and thereby qualify for winter works grant. Covering on-site labor costs, the grant will save the municipality $200,000.

Esquimalt's share of exenses is about $450,000 with a $950,000 loan coming from the Winter Capital Project fund approved by the department of municipal affairs. One-third of that loan will

NEW IDEAS, ADVICE SOUGHT BY CAMOSUN

A three-point program for getting new ideas and advice on the operation of Camosun College has been suggested by college principal Dr. Grant Fisher.

Fisher presented his proposal to the finance committee of Camosun College council Monday for discussion.

They include:

-Hiring one or two PhD students of adult education or college administration as interns to work at the college from

-Organizing a week-long tour of selected Canadian and U.S. colleges to get ideas. Suggested tour members would be Fisher and three administrators, four teachers, two students and three councillors;

-Having an exchange between Fisher or a top college administrator and a faculty member from the University of Alberta's project for training college administrators, which is sponsored by the Kellog Foundation.

Fisher suggested the Kellog Foundation, through the University of Alberta, and B.C.'s education commission, be approached for money to start the three projects.

Nurse School Plan Attacked

A proposed apprenticeship program for practical nurses ran into solid opposition from members of Camosun College council at a committee meeting Monday.

Council's curriculum committee agreed to recommend council write the provincial government type of the provincial government type of the strong opposition to any paid apprenticeship for practical nurses.

The proposal for an 18-month apprenticeship program had been made by the Hospital Employees', John Drysdale, director of trades and industrial training, told the committee.

As apprentices attached to a hospital, the students would be paid just as other apprentices are, said Drysdale. He said the difference beween nursing apprentices and apprentice carpenters is that apprentice carpenters can afford to make a few mistakes, but nursing apprentices

Councillor Betty Moore, a nurse, agreed, saying an apprenticeship program might create "some conditions of jeopardy for patients."

"You're not practising on a piece of wood. You're practising on patients," she said.
Drysdale said a paid apprenticeship program would cause some practical nursing students to lose money in-stead of gain it.

He said 70 per cent of stu-dents taking the 10-month Camosun program are receiving financial aid from Canada Manpower that is more than they would receive as appren-The move to get payment for work done by practical nursing students could "no doubt" be the start of a trend, said Drysdale, "This could be the thin edge of the wedge," he said.

Other students, such as cook trainees who get on the-job training in the college caf-eteria, might also be considered eligible for payment, he Committee chairman Dr. Philip Ney suggested the col-lege take a look at providing some financial help for the 30 per cent of students not getting Manpower money.

However, not all committee members agreed to this and the suggestion goes to next week's council meeting without recommendation.

The current practical nursing program offered in community colleges has three or four months pre-clinical train-ing followed by six or seven months clinical training in

The program proposed would be from 12 to 18 months long, with one-third of the time in the classroom and the rest in the hospital.

In other business, the com-mittee heard an appeal from Derrick Mallard, president of the Citizens' Association to Save the Environment (CASE) asking for moral sup-port for an environmental conference planned for 1976.

A United Nations environmental conference is being held in Vancouver in 1976, similar to the one in Stockholm last year, and CASE wants to organize a conference in Victoria to complement the official UN one.

Mallard's request got only partial support from the committee, and will go to next week's council meeting with-

The council's finance committee agreed to recommend the college sign a three-year lease for space in the Victoria Press building to set up its new dental assistant program.

Annual rent for the 2,000 square feet of space is $4 a square foot, which committee chairman Walter Donald said compares very favorably with rates for comparable space.

The lease is expected to begin Jan. 1.

$1,000 Reward For Dog Poisoner

A resident near Esquimalt Lagoon today offered a $1,000 reward for information leading to the jailing of whoever is poisoning dogs in his neighborhood.

David De Muth, 308 Milburn, said his dog, which died nine days ago, is one of several he thinks were poisoned by strychnine recently. He suspects 15 or more dogs have been poisoned in the past year.

He said he fears children out trick-or-treating Wednesday night might somehow encounter the poison.

He will personally pay $1,000 to anyone whose information leads to conviction and a jail term for dog poisoning in the vicinity of Milburn and Anchorage, he said.

Sgt. Ted Foster of the Colwood RCMP detachment said today there are reports of four dogs dying of suspected poisoning in the past 10 days or so.

Another area, Leigh Road in Langford, has also been the scene of suspected dog poisonings, he said.

Industrial Dead Langford Lake Feared by Residents

> By LIZ HUGHES Times Staff

Langford Lake could be "dead" by next spring if heavy floods push wood chips from a B.C. Hydro project on Jacklin Road in the lake, residents of the area charged

The chips are "notoriously poisonous and can kill a body of water," John McIllree, chairman of the Langford Lake Improvement District,

The wood chips have been put down on a 1,500-foot strip of land to give B.C. Hydro vehicles access to towers being constructed for a power station, the past-president of the Glen Lake Ratepayers' Association, Jim London,

The area commonly floods to a depth of two or three feet during the winter, and spring run-offs will carry the chips directly in the lake, London

The 1,500-foot strip of land is a part of a 40-acre field owned by Langford resident Barry Fisher.

The field is "the finest piece of farm land in the whole unorganized area of Langford-Colwood-Metchosin and is being permanently defaced and reduced in productivity by the installation of high tension power lines and massive concrete piers for B.C Hydro," the ratepayers' asso ciation charged in a letter to Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer and to Capital Regional District chairman

So far, the association's protest has drawn no reply or action by B.C. Hydro or the

The station is being built on farm land and we felt in the first place that it went the government's against farm protection policy.

"We didn't get anywhere with that and then Barry Fisher, who owns the strip of field, asked the lines be put underground, but that didn't happen either.

"The contractors dug up that field and then put in the wood chips and any waste is going to go right into Lang-ford Lake." Langford Lake has run into problems before with floods and spring run-offs from the field on Jacklin Road.

"About 15 years ago, a farmer planted potatoes in that field and put in fertiliz-er. When the floods came, the fertilizer went right in the lake, and even now we still have a problem with the nitrate and phosphorous from that fertilizer," London said.

"That exact thing would happen with the wood chips." The letter of protest sent to Lorimer and the regional board warns of the dire conse-quence of "such stupid action on the part of the contractor."

But the public works committee urged today the federal government be asked to pick up at least part of the tab. A request along those lines will be referred to Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee.

The city has about 6,000 mercury street lights and traffic engineer Dave Campbell estimated if they are replaced with "color cor-rected" lamps at the rate of about 1,200 a year, over five years, the annual extra cost would be about $2,400.

Today's recommended action followed a letter from E. H. Richardson, acting director of the observatory, in which he appealed for municipal co-operation to maintain "a reasonably dayly star."

Richardson said emission from mercury lights has been increasing "alarmingly," and hampering astronomical observations.

"We do not wish to move this observatory from Victoria, a wish shared, no doubt, by many citizens who are interested in astronomy or who do business with the observatory," he said.

Hearing Nov. 14 On Lines

A public hearing to discuss B.C. Hydro's plans to build new transmission lines from Victoria to Qualicum will be held at the Westwind Motor Inn, Colwood, on Nov. 14 at 7:30 p.m.

A Hydro spokesman said he 90-mile 500 kilovolt lines will form the backbone of a new power delivery system to meet the island's needs for the next 25 to 30 years.

The first will be required by 1977 and the second by the early 1980s.

The lines would require a 500-foot right-of-way to handle the 100-foot-high steel towers.

At present, the island is served by a 138-kilovolt line from Victoria to Campbell River which has been operating for 25 years.

A public hearing will also be held in Duncan Nov. 22. The Hydro spokesman said the company is working principally through regional dis-

No Blame In Crash Of Plane

A coroner's jury Monday found no fault with any per-son or company for the Aug. 18 plane crash in North Saanich which killed five persons.

The six-man jury decided the plane developed engine trouble shortly after leaving Victoria International Airport on a flight to Vancouver.

A Ministry of Transport team, headed by Cyril Dzus, concluded that the twin-en-gine Apache, owned by Vic-toria Flying-Services, was air-worthy when it took off.

A medical report indicated no drugs or alcohol were in the blood of two of the deceased: the pilot, David Clark, 22, of Marine Apart-ments in Sidney, and a pas-senger, Bruce Gordon, 27, of 1256 Roy Road.

Blood tests were not made on the other three passengers: Jane Quelch, 19, of West Vancouver, Janet Ruttan, 24, of 1256 Roy, and Katherine Roderick, 24, of New Bruns-

'Exploited' Farmer Gripes to Region

There was a general grumpiness this morning at the opening of the second day of the Capital Regional District public hearing into its agricultural land reserve plan.

While the petitioning was polite and often articulated by lawyers Monday, this morn-ing regional directors were met by anger and testiness from farmers and other individual land owners.

Brian Hoole of 5675 Oldfield Road arrived late and told the board he had had to pay an $8 taxi fare to get there. He said he spoke for "the exploited farmer" and he challenged any director who could make a living from farming on five acres of that part of his property which has been placed in the reserve to stand up.

William K. Noppe, 900 Mt. Newton Crossroad, told the board "It's an absurdity to have to come down here and talk about this (property) as a farm."

Although the hoard is using Canadian Land Inventory soil specifications to determine what should be placed in the reserve, Noppe-voicing the

About seven years ago, El-liot recalled, they began observing and treating their first stroke patients. They scheduled regular checkups with each of them for an average of five years.

The result was that 61 percent of patients in an untreat-ed control group at the hospital died, while only 18 per cent of patients under the stroke prevention program died of a second cerebral in-

Social Work '50 Years Behind'

EDMONTON (CP) - Social work is about 50 years behind the times in protecting professional status and public accountability, Anthony Gray, executive director of the Canadian Association of Social Workers, said Monday.

"As it stands now, in private practice anybody or everybody can consider themselves a social worker — for instance, anyone could go ahead and set themselves up as a marriage counsellor," he told the Alberta Association of Social Workers.

Legislation should be enacted making registration with a provincial association of social workers mandatory, he said.
The association would set standards for qualifications, fees and ethics, and would police these standards

Gray added that admission policies at universities and colleges should be revised to qualifications racticing social workers.
"Of the 25,000 people doing social work in Canada, about 9,000 have a qualified background in terms of a universi-ty degree. It would be more eficial for schools of social work to take people who are already working in the field for retraining than to accept those without experience.

Executive Wife: A Big Headache of the biggest headaches of North American business today is the executive wife, says a prominent psychiatrist.

He feels conditions of the typical executive's marriage are unfair to the wife in other ways. His life is more stimulating, not only mentally but sexually. "A day spent launching a project or run-ning a seminar is more likely to be sexually stimulatingthan an evening spent sharing TV or going over the kids' report cards," he wrote.

Nerve Gas Disposal Starts

increase in Canadian demand for North American au-DENVER (UPI) - Technicians guarded by a thick wall and a special gas-leak warning system have begun the dismantling of 125,115 nerve gas bombs stored at the tomobiles is the main cause of an abrupt reversal in this country's automobile trade balance with the U.S., Trade Rocky Mountain Arsenal. Minister Alastair Gillespie told the Commons Monday.

> Ed Broadbent (NDP-Osha wa-Whitby) said a $68-million deficit was recorded in the first six months of this year. He said this represents a "turnaround of $240 million."

Gillespie said department officials had investigated the change and found "quite clearly" "an unprecedented demand on the part of Canadians for North American-made vehicles" is at fault.

Broadbent argued the real reason is that 95 per cent of the capital investment in the automobile industry in the last three years had been in the U.S. He asked for an in-

Sawmill Transfer Defended

Transferring ownership of Plateau Mills sawmill directly to the provincial government as a means of avoiding federal corporation taxes, will not have a "depressing effect" on other competing corporations, Resources Minister Robert Williams said Monday.

The minister also said he did not know how much money the company would save through the transfer approved earlier by cabinet.

Plateau Mills in Vanderhoof was originally bought by the government in June through its holding company, B.C. Cellulose, for $7.4 million.

The company is now owned directly by the provincial treasury and will not be subject to federal corporation

Responding to a question by Oak Bay Conservative MLA Scott Wallace, Williams said he did not think other companies would be "depressed" by the move but said the government might "look at ways. ment might "look at ways . . . to serve the community bet-

He has said earlier the government may make a payment in lieu of taxes in the form of community benefits for the local area.

Premier Barrett added that it was "not a question of cor-porate rip-off but a question of the people getting their own back."

will be regulated under legislation introduced Monday by Agricultural Minister Dave Stupich.

The legislation, amendements to the Soil Conservation Act, prohibits persons from removing topsoil from that land which is within a government-designated agricultural land reserve without a permit.

Through the amendments, the government will allow for the appointment of local topsoil committees, which will con-sist of one member of a local council or regional board, one member appointed by the local body and one member from the department of agriculture.

These local committees, Stupich said, will advise the local body on the advisability of removing topsoil from specific areas after which the local body would issue permits if removal of topsoil is considered advisable.

There is no authority at present which permits the government to prohibit the removal of topsoil from agricultural Stupich said the legislation will allow the government to "meet the over-all intent of the Land Commission Act — preservation of agricultural land."

The act will not prohibit a person from removing topsoil from his own land within an agricultural reserve.

Individuals prohibited from removing topsoil from land will be permitted to appeal to the local government body and from there to the environment and land use committee of the cabinet. This appeal machinery is similar to that contained in the Land Commmission Act, passed by the legislature this spring.

Energy Board Insulted B.C.-Barrett

Actions of the National Energy Board are "an insult to the people of British Columbia. Premier Barrett charged in the legislature

Barrett said it was "an anomalous situation" when a private company, Westcoast Transmission, appears to have had direct contact with a federal board and the provincial government did not.

He was answering a question by Scott Wallace (PC—Oak Bay) who asked how it came about that Westcoast received approval from the NEB to obtain extra natural gas supplies when the provincial government had not received even an answer to its request on the same subject.

In the face of a 10 per cent cutback in its gas supplies Westcoast said two weeks ago it would cutback on both its

Saanich Mayoralty Trio Hits Hustings in Hurry

Hours after nominations for the Nov. 17 election closed Monday, Saanich's three mayoralty candidates got down to the political clinches.

Edith Gunning, Frank Waring and Ed Lum had one thing in common when they spoke at a joint dinner meeting of the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce's Saanich affairs group and the Saanich Rotary Club.

They all claimed eligibility on grounds of experience.

There were some substantial differences too.

On the question of amalgamation, Lum said "It's on the way. We should be getting our house and services in Both Waring and Gunning were unwilling to accept amalgamation.

"Until somebody proves to me there are advantages," Waring said, "I feel we should stay the way we are.

"I would hate to see the municipalities in this area lose their character. I would hate to see this for the sake of being bigger."

'There's a great deal of value in smaller units," Gunning said, "The sense of identity, etc."

It was the same kind of split when the three were asked their views on the $4,115,000 works referendum to be voted on at the election.

"I will not support the referendum in its present form," Lum said, adding that it should have been split in two. "The roadwork and drainage is a little too rich when interest rates are so high. It (the referendum) could have been cut by about $1.5 million."

When Digging's A Pleasure

To the gardeners who are redesigning for today's and tomorrow's needs, the advice to get the major part of permanent planting done as soon as possible.

The reason has been given many times that shrubs and trees will be re-established by spring, thus gaining a season of growth over a spring plant-

This is only one half the story. The other half is in favor of the gardener who does the heavy labor and preparing the site for planting.

When fall rains have reached down into dry soil, the digging of a piece of ground is a pleasure even though it takes the full physical ability of the worker.

In redesigning, the piece of ground may have been under rough grass and weeds for a few years, getting perhaps a twice yearly rough cut.

lected, they formed not only a protection from hot sun, pounding rain and eroding wind, but acted as a source of humus as the elements broke the material down into finer particles

A clay soil is immensely improved in this way; a sandy luxuriant.

For planting young trees³ and shrubs it is necessary to many of our urban areas, results in a new plant virtually sitting in a tub of water all

The result is-drowning. The roots will be unable to get air, therefore unable to make extension to forage for food. The plant will likely fail to survive beyond the following

When a few deep rooting weeds like burdock and thistle have mingled with grass, the soil will be found in good fer-tile condition because these roots will have brought nearer the surface some of the minerals from below the reach of grass roots. With the return of the cut top growth each year, the soil improvement is a nat-ural sequence.

The soil looks good and feels good. It breaks readily when turned over. A few cracks of the fork or shovel and you can see the fibre in it as it crumbles.

Sometimes a tined hoe (or manure drag) will break the lumps more easily; the soil now has just the right amount of dampness.

It takes labor to accomplish, but at least it possible to accomplish at this time in fall, whereas spring means an unworkable heavy wet soil until middle or late May. By then it is too risky to do much planting of shrubs unless constant attention can be proved with humidity and watering.

Two plantings each day that garden work can be done will go a long way with remaking a home garden of his adventures in India. "I recall the time," he said, "when I was stalking a tiger. After a few hours, I found. myself in a narrow mountain path. On each side of me there was nothing but a sheer ascent of rock. Suddenly, about 100 feet behind me, I espied a tiger eying me.

"I ran up the path. The tiger followed. I ran faster. So did the tiger. After ten min-utes, I came to a dead end: a mountain in front of me, and a mountain on each side of "What could I do?" The hunter replied. "Nothing, of course, the tiger ate me."

By analogy, at the bridgetable, one's demise sometimes comes about owing to circumstances beyond his circumstances beyond his control. Today's deal is a case in point.

South's Blackwood four no-trump bid was a bit on the aggressive side, but he felt that East's pre-emptive bid was an attempt by the latter to prevent North-South from getting to a slam. So, prob-ably goaded into his aggres-sive action, South drove on to a slam.

On West's opening lead of the diamond queen, dummy played the four-spot. East promptly overtook the queen with his ace and played back the spade king. South covered with the ace—and West round.

Canada eliminated the Cartiblean 3-2 in the opening round.

East had not overtaken his partner's queen, declarer partner's queen, declarer would have fulfilled his contract, for he later would have discarded his losing spade on one of dummy's top clubs.

East, of course, was the hero of the deal for his overtake his partner's queen of diamonds. He knew that the queen would win the trick - but he knew something else which was of more practical significance: that West was void of spades!

From the East seat, there were two spades not in evi-dence, the ace and the three. If West had possessed either of these cards, he surely would have led the suit (East having bid spades). Thus, reasoned East, West's failure to have led a spade at trick one could have meant just one thing: He was void of spades.

Vote Power

the B.C. Municipal Act introduced in the legislature

Jim Lorimer brought in the sizeable list of amendments headed by elimination of cor-porate and absentee voters rom municipal voting lists.
The act now provides that each land-owner is entitled to vote. In some cases where a corporation designated one of its directors to vote on behalf of the corporation, and that director was also voting on behalf of some other land-owning corporation, an indiv-idual could end up with mul-

Lorimer told reporters after the legislation was introduced Monday evening the ultimate objective, which he hopes can be accomplished within two years, is to have an identical and municipal voters list. In the meantime, however, the new eligibility requirement will be in effect for all municipal elections in 1974. It required that any muin 1974 must first conduct an enumeration of its residents so as to establish its voters

Other amendments to the

-Percentage vote required for passage of a money bylaw in a municipality drops to a majority from the former 60

-Procedures through which adjoining areas can be amalgamated are clarified, with government retaining power to introduce special amalbills specific areas.

-Municipalities permitted to invest sinking funds in

want to pay for. amalgamation of areas was possible through a variety of methods. Under the new bill, the minister of municipal affairs may order an amalgamation on the basis of a simple majority vote of the over-all area affected by the amalgamation

For example, in the case of Greater Victoria, if View Royal, Langford and Colwood were proposed for amalgamation with the other four core municipalities, all that would be required would be a ma-jority vote of the residents of Victoria, including

The effect of this is that the largely-negative reaction of people in outlying areas being faced with increased municipal taxes as a result of amalgamation will not be as evident since it will be only part of a much larger expression

The legislation specifies the minister has power to deter-mine voting boundaries.

Eligibility requirements for municipal voting will be: a

CHEERS, HANDSHAKES surrounded Premier Robert Bourassa at a victory rally today in Liberal headquarters as well-wishers gathered around to congratulate Bourassa on his personal re-election and his party sweeping at least 101 of the 110 seats in the Quebec government.

NOBODY WANTS COX'S JOB

WASHINGTON (WP) — Acting U.S. Attorney-General Robert Bork continued his efforts Monday to find a new special Watergate prosecutor but without success.

Bork would not say how many rejections he has received, but he did not deny that some candidates have said no.

He has called some 20 persons, including prospective nominees, about the job, several sources said.

Bork said that he was calling "friends and attorneys" and as a result, taking some names off his list of possible appointees and adding others to it. He said some people he has called suggested reasons why certain nominees should not be considered and then recommended another candidate or two.

"So my lists grows by the day," he said. (See also Page

Crown Suits To Be Allowed

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said Monday British Columbians will be allowed to sue the provincial government under a bill to be presented at the next session.

He told a meeting of the B.C. Hotels Association in Vancouver a person will then have the right to sue the government without the attorneygeneral's permission. At present suits against the Crown require his consent.

Strike Voted At Hospital

The 350-member Hospital Employees Union at Gorge Road Hospital voted 98.2 per cent in favor of strike action at 1:30 a.m. today after attempts to gain a first contract

Hospital employees are unable to post a 72-hour strike notice however until after a negotiating meeting, scheduled for Thursday in Van-couver, a spokesman said Issues at stake are discrimi-

Referring to the arbitration award, Morrison said "it was awarded at Jubilee and at the awarded at Jubilee and at the odd other hospital in the prov-ince, but virtually all others subscribe to the standard agreement."

Wholesale Prices Drop

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Wholesale prices of food and industrial goods posted the biggest drop in more than three years in September, Statistics Canada reported Monday. However the prices remained 27.4% above September last year.

A companion report also showed some food products manufacturers selling at lower prices last month, particularly for meat, flour and vegetable oils.

Herb Gray, minister of consumer and corporate affairs, told the Commons the govern ment is watching to see whether wholesale food price declines are being passed along to consumers.

However, the drop of seven tenths of one per cent in the government's General Wholesale Index last month offset only a fraction of the previous only a fraction of the previous month's 7.5 per cent increase, steepest for a single month in more than 34 years.

The food manufacturers price reductions in September were also smaller than their previous month's increases,

Over-all wholesale prices in September were 27.4 per cent over a year earlier, with animal products 63 per cent higher and vegetable products 30.8 per cent more costly. Some of the wholesale food price drop in September appeared to have been reflected in the more moderate rise in September living costs re-ported earlier by Stafistics Canada. The rise in the Consumer Price Index was six-tenths of one per cent, less than half August's 22-year high increase of 1.3 per cent.

GAS GOING UP 6 CENTS A GALLON - Gasoline prices east of the Ottawa Valley will increase six cents a gallon before the end of November.

This was the bleak assessment of one federal government source after the staggering 56 per cent weekend increase in the base price Venezuela uses to calculate oil taxes. The government source, who asked not to be named, said it will cost about two cents a gallon at the retail level to off-set the cost of Venezuelan price increases announced in September and early October.

Another increase of about four cents a gallon will be needed to cover the latest increase.

This would push premium gasoline prices to about 70 cents a gallon in some areas and shove the price of regular gasoline past 60 cents for many consumers.

OTTAWA (CP) — The 1974 Law of the Sea Conference, originally scheduled for Santiago, Chile, likely will be held in another South American country, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Monday in a Commons reply to Lloyd Crouse (PC-South Shore)

The new Chilean regime, which overthrew Marxist which overthrew Marxist president Salvador Allende last month, has announced it does not want to hold the con-ference, scheduled to begin in April.

Sharp indicated it would not be to this country's advantage to be the host and said discussions on a site still are being held in New York "and else-

Good Crops Ease Threat Of Famine

WASHINGTON (AP) dramatically improved harvest in the Soviet Union indicates that the 1973 world wheat crop may be more than enough to meet international food needs through mid-1974, the United States agriculture department said Monday.

The department's foreign agricultural service said the 1973 Soviet wheat crop, rebounding sharply from last year's near disaster, is ex-pected to be a record 100 million tons, up five million from indications two months ago.

That would put world wheat output in 1973-74 at a record 354.8 million tons about 5.6 million less than the anticipated demand by all countries.

But a spokesman said the department is in the process of revising further the Soviet wheat estimate, possibly to 110 million tons or more.

BUFFALO (AP) - Coach Hank Stram of Kansas City Chiefs said: "Incredible was the best way to describe it."
He was talking about O. J.

Simpson who cracked the 1,000-yard barrier and broke a 39-year National Football League single-game rushing Buffalo Bills hipped the Chiefs 24-13. Simpson, All America Heisman Trophy winner from Southern California, reeled off 157 yards rushing to increase his total to 1,025.

For O. J., the output was a seven-game NFL record—54 yards more than Jim Brown posted for Cleveland Browns in 1963. Simpson set another mark, carrying 39 times to better by one the number of carries by Harry Newman in 1934 and Jim Nance in 1966.

"I really don't think about records," Simpson said in the dressing room. "Instead, you've got to run and that's what I'm doing. You don't run for records. You just run and the records come."

But Simpson, pointing to Brown's single-season high of 1,863 yards, seemed to be kid-seven games and we'll go for another 1,000 in the next seven," Simpson said. The ''we'' referred to by

Simpson were his teammates, especially the young, aggressive offensive line which has been paving the way for his ground gaining.

For Coach Lou Saban, it was a big game.
"We had to win one pretty guick."

Buffalo kicked off, the Chiefs missed on a pass and then fumbled. Middle line-backer Jim Cheyunski reco-vered for the Bills on the Chiefs' 15. Simpson carried the ball four consecutive times, scor-

Quarterback Joe Ferguson's fumble was recovered by the Chiefs on the Bills' 43 and, four plays later, Wendell Hayes scored from one yard Punter Spike Jones dropped a fourth-down snap from centre in the fourth quarter and the Chiefs got the ball on Buffalo's two. Quarterback Pete Beathard sneaked into the end zone.

Buffalo now has won five games—one more than in all of last season—and dropped two. The Chiefs return home with a 3-3-1 mark.

Football: Add Four More to Trophy List

The essence of defence in football is "get the quarter-back" and four more good ones were listed as trophies after weekend action in the National Football League.

Hardest hit were the Pittsburgh Steelers, No. 1 in the Central Division of the American Conference. They lost their first-string quarterback Terry Bradshaw for sure, for at least six weeks with a broken collarbone. Their second string, Terry Hanratty, was also racked up, but managed to continue in the game despite cracked ribs. in the game despite cracked ribs.

The others, perhaps not as prominent, but equally as valuable to the success of their clubs, were Greg Landry of Detroit and Jim Del Gaizo of Green Bay. Both were side-lined. The full extent of their injuries is not yet announced, but it's still tough, hard-nosed football, that endless fight between offence and defence. The quarterbacks are the brave

There has often been talk of giving quarterbacks more protection, of having rules that might help to prevent some of these serious injuries, especially on those late hits. Those are the plays open to criminal charges. But just as often it is the quarterbacks who shy away from any change. They are proud of their trade, risky and dangerous as it may be.

Most notable case in point is Joe Namath, kingpin of the New York Jets and one of the most celebrated passers the game has known. In a recent magazine article, Namath said in his opinion nothing should be done to detract from this

The Biggest Prize of All

Namath is still out of action from a separated shoulder suffered in the Jets' 34-10 victory over Baltimore, and if he is generally considered No. 1 among NFL passers, the Jets have won only one game since he became a victim. That typifies his value to the club.

If that wasn't bad enough, Namath's replacement, Al Woodall, was knocked out of action with a sprained knee; and since then the Jets have been going with a fellow who was a free agent and got his job only because coach Weeb Ewbank saw movies of him as a college quarterback, and liked what he saw. Bill Demory is the name, for the present just another guy, but learning fast. If he is no Namath, there aren't many who are either; and few men have taken such a battering.

Of course, if he couldn't throw he wouldn't be in the hospital that often. When he was first signed by the Jets as a $400,000 quarterback, when that was bigger money than it is now, he immediately became the most coveted prize of all blitzing linebackers and pass rushers.

"I was the trophy they wanted, and I knew it," said Namath. The hurt shoulder is just the latest in a long list. Namath, it will be recalled, had a knee operation before he reported to the Jets. He's had three more operations on his knees since then.

He's also had a broken bone in his passing wrist, and once when he was hit by big Ben Davidson of the Oakland Raiders, by a taped right hand, he suffered a fractured cheekbone while his helmet spun crazily across the field. But it didn't upset his cool.

A Price for Greatness

They tell the story how Namath appeared in the lobby of the hotel that evening, face swollen, in a tux, and with a glass of scotch in one hand. He had difficulty speaking.

"Where are you going?" someone asked. "I'm off to Vegas," he said. The next Sunday, he was back in the lineup. But will he retire? Not likely, not this time. After his latest separation he said: "Not me. I'm going to keep playing football as long as I can."

Maybe some quarterbacks can throw farther than Namath, but few are as accurate, or as quick. That is his forte, plus his flair as the playboy type. He is the instant-hero individual, and gutsy, just like all quarterbacks.

And could it be that Sunday's injury to Bradshaw might spell doom for the Steelers, especially if Hanratty gets another shot to the rib cage like he received on Sunday?

other shot to the rib cage like he received on Sunday?

Perhaps, but that's the price of greatness all winning teams must pay. Most quarterbacks, however, wouldn't have it any other way. It's their creed.

As Namath said: "If the defence wins, they're entitled

Spoken like an injured quarterback. Sconer or later, aren't they all? But still the brave ones.

EASTERN CONFERENCE A move to expand the Seattle Parks Basketball League to 10 teams may leave Victoria Scorpions out in the cold, manager Dave Henson disclosed Monday.

Scorpions had hoped to enter the league this season but learned of the expansion move only last weekend when teams from a defunct Tacoma league applied for entry.

That would mean a 36-game schedule going into next April for Scorpions, who must be free by mid-February to compete in B.C. Senior "A" playoffs.

Langford Lake could be "dead" by next spring if heavy floods push wood chips from a B.C. Hydro project on Jacklin Road in the lake, residents of the area charged

The chips are "notoriously poisonous and can kill a body of water," John McIllree, chairman of the Langford Lake Improvement District,

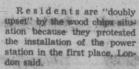

The wood chips have been put down on a 1,500-foot strip of land to give B.C. Hydro vehicles access to towers being constructed for a power station, the past-president of the Glen Lake Ratepayers' Association, Jim London,

The area commonly floods to a depth of two or three feet during the winter, and spring run-offs will carry the chips directly in the lake, London

The 1,500-foot strip of land is a part of a 40-acre field owned by Langford resident Barry Fisher.

The field is "the finest piece of farm land in the whole unorganized area of Langford-Colwood-Metchosin and is being permanently defaced and reduced in productivity by the installation of high ten sion power lines and massive concrete piers for B.C. Hydro," the ratepayers' association charged in a letter to Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer and to Capital Regional District chairman

The letter of protest sent to Lorimer and the regional board warns of the dire consequence of "such stupid action on the part of the contractor."

This is an active instance of the flagrant disregard of the intent of Land Use and Anti-Pollution legislation," the letter warns.

Today's recommended action followed a letter from E. H. Richardson, acting director of the observatory, in which he appealed for municipal co-operation to maintain "a reasonably dark sky."

Richardson said emission fro mmercury lights has been increasing "alarmingly," and hampering astronomical observations.

Land Loses Vote Power

Votes for people, not land, is the heart of a bill to amend the B.C. Municipal Act introduced in the legislature

Municipal Affairs Minister Jim Lorimer brought in the sizeable list of amendments headed by elimination of cor-porate and absentee voters from municipal voting lists.

The act now provides that each land-owner is entitled to vote. In some cases where a corporation designated one its directors to vote on behalf of the corporation, and that director was also voting on behalf of some other landowning corporation, an individual could end up with multiple votes.

Lorimer told reporters after the legislation was introduced Monday evening the ultimate objective, which he hopes can be accomplished within two years, is to have an identical provincial and municipal voters list. In the meantime, however, the new eligibility requirement will be in effect for all municipal elections in 1974. It will be required that any mu-nicipality holding an election in 1974 must first conduct an enumeration of its residents so as to establish its voters

Other amendments to the

-Percentage vote required for passage of a money bylaw in a municipality drops to a majority from the former 60

Procedures through which adjoining areas can be amalgamated are clarified, with government retaining power, to introduce special amalbills gamation concerning

-Municipalities permitted invest sinking funds in credit unions

Lorimer said the money bylaw percentage vote requirement was lowered because of the government's be-lief a simple majority of residents of an area should be able to determine for themselves what measures they want to pay for.

Under existing legislation amalgamation of areas was possible through a variety of methods. Under the new bill, the minister of municipal af-fairs may order an amalgamation on the basis of a simple majority vote of the over-all area affected by the

For example, in the case of Greater Victoria, if View Royal, Langford and Colwood tion with the other four core municipalities, all that would be required would be a majority vote of the residents of Greater Victoria, including those people living in View Royal, Colwood and Langford: The effect of this is that the largely-negative reaction of people in outlying areas being faced with increased municipal taxes as a result of amalgamation will not be as evident since it will be only part of a much larger expression

The legislation specifies the minister has power to deter-mine voting boundaries.

Eligibility requirements for municipal voting will be: a part.

CHEERS, HANDSHAKES surrounded Premier Robert Bourassa at a victory rally today in Liberal headquarters as well-wishers gathered around to congratulate Bourassa on his personal re-election and his party sweeping at least 101 of the 110 seats in the Quebec government.

NOBODY WANTS COX'S JOB

WASHINGTON (WP) — Acting U.S. Attorney-General Robert Bork continued his efforts Monday to find a new special Watergate prosecutor but without success.

Bork would not say how many rejections he has received, but he did not deny that some candidates have said no.

He has called some 20 persons, including prospective ominees, about the job, several sources said,

Bork said that he was calling "friends and attorneys" and as a result, taking some names off his list of possible appointees and adding others to it. He said some people he has called suggested reasons why certain nominees should not be considered and then recommended another candidate or two. "So my lists grows by the day," he said. (See also Page

But Levesque said he feared the Liberal sweep would lead to excessive power in the hands of a single party.

Loubier said he felt much of the vote was not so much for the Liberals as it was against the Parti Quebecois.

Dupuis said he believes the landslide will make it difficult for the Liberals to govern.

Of 110 seats being contested, Liberals appear to have won 102, the Party Quebecois six, the Creditistes two and the Union Nationale none.

Bourassa said the result was "certainly the greatest victory in Quebec history."

Though a new electoral map has since been drawn, constituency boundaries extensively revised and two new ridings added, Levesque reiterated Monday night that his party won only the same number of seats though increasing its popular vote to 30 per cent.

With two-thirds of all polls reported, the Liberals had 54 per cent of the popular vote up from 45 per cent in 1970 while the opposition parties combined accounted for 46 per cent, 10 per cent for the Creditistes and five per cent for the Union Nationale, the former official opposition.

Bourassa said he believes a protest vote went to the Parti Quebecois, adding: "I think the election is a defeat of the separatist option despite the increase in the PQ's popular

The Party That Died

QUEBEC (CP) - There is a legend in Quebec politics that the late Maurice Duplessis told his political cronies in 1935 would die with him. Although the story has been repeated in election after election since Duplessis death in 1959, few people put much credence in the legend until they looked at the results of Monday's election.

The Union Nationale, official Opposition in the last national assembly, failed to win a seat. Gabriel Loubier, the party's leader, was one of its 110 candidates to be de

Loubier said in a post-elec-tion statement he plans a few days holidays and then will meet the party's executive to discuss its future.

To many it was almost unbelievable that the party Duplessis built out of a collection of Conservatives and dissident Liberals had been shattered, perhaps beyond repair, in Premier Robert Bourassa's verwhelming sweep. The Union Nationale ended a 40-year Liberal reign in 1936 and itself appeared headed for a lengthy term in office under Duplessis' authoritarian

But the Second World War decided to fight an election on platform of non-participa tion. The federal Liberals took up the challenge and came into Quebec with the party coffers and its most powerful speakers to help lead the provincial Liberals to victory. Duplessis' stay in opposition lasted until 1944 when he again ousted the Liberals with
